

TUESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1744.

Milan, January 8.

HERE is now no Doubt but that his Sardinian Majesty will be immediately put in Possession of the Territories yielded to him by the Treaty of Worms; and as the Commissioners on both Sides are to set out this very Day for Vigevano and Piacenza in order to the execution of the Treaty, it may not be amiss to publish the Articles relating to this Division.

Her Majesty the Queen of Hungary yields and resigns, by these Presents, to his Majesty the King of Sardinia, in order that they may be united to his other Dominions, the Town and District of Vigevano, commonly called the Vigevanasque; that Part of the Pavian which lies between the Po and the Ticino; so that the Ticino shall, henceforward, by the middle of its Channel, separate and become the common Boundary between the Dominions of their Majesties, from its falling out of the Lago Maggiore, to its junction with the Po; excepting only the Island formed by the Canal over-against the City of Pavia, which shall still be reserved to her Majesty; on Condition nevertheless, that the King shall have free Communication on the River Ticino, for the Passage of all Sorts of Vessels, without their being liable to Stoppage, Visiting, or the Payment of any Duty; and that the said Canal shall not be filled up, but serve for a common Boundary; and further, that Part of the Pavian called Pavese d'Oltre Po Bobbio, and its Territory, including also the City of Piacenza, and all that Part of the Plaisantin, which is between the Pavian and the middle of the River Nura, from its Source to the River Po; so that, for the future, the middle Channel of the Nura and of the Po shall, henceforward, serve as the Boundary between the two States; and consequently, so much of the Plaisantin as lies on the other Side of the Po, shall henceforward be separated therefrom. In fine, that Part of the Country of Auggiera, or of the State of Milan, whatever particular Name it may be known by, which borders upon the Novarois, the Valley of Sezia, the Great Apes, and the Country of Valaisan, running up quite to the Swiss Pre-secures of Valmaggia and Locarno, and along, and in the Lago Maggiore, to the middle of the said Lake, in such a manner, as that, for the Time to come, the Confines between the States of his Majesty the King of Sardinia, and those of her Majesty the Queen of Hungary, shall be for ever fixed by a Line drawn from the Borders of Switzerland thro' the middle of the Lago Maggiore to the Mouth of the Ticino, to be continued from thence thro' the middle of the Channel of the said River, to its junction with the Po, excepting only the Front of the before-mentioned Island over-against the City of Pavia; and from thence to be pursued thro' the middle of the Po, until remounting thro' the middle of the Channel of the Nura, it reaches its Source, which is in the Country of Genoa.

The before-mentioned Division of the Course of these Rivers, shall no Way hinder the free Navigation of them; but the same shall remain to the Subjects of both Sovereigns over the whole Extent of the Rivers, with the Liberty of using the Strands, in order to the drawing up such Vessels as remount them; the said Strands remaining nevertheless with regard to the Property, as well as all other Considerations to the before-mentioned Sovereigns respectively, who may make on either Side such Reparations as shall to them seem necessary; provided always, that they be not so frequent, that is to say, that they do not project in such a manner as to turn the Course of the River on the Lands of the opposite Side; and that on the Part of his Majesty the King of Sardinia, it shall not be lawful, on any Pretence whatever, to erect any Works which may impede the free Entrance of the Waters into the Canal or Naviglio which is on the Side of her Hungarian Majesty's Territories, and by which the said Waters are conveyed to Milan.

The next Article relates to the Marquisate of Final, and is to this Purpose. Moreover, as it is of the highest Importance to the Common Cause, that his Majesty the King of Sardinia should have a free Communication, between his Dominions and the Sea, that he may be the more effectually succoured and supported by the Maritime Powers, her Majesty the Queen of Hungary yields to him all the Rights that she may have to the Town and Marquisate of Final, without any Restriction; in the same Manner as she does the Country described in the foregoing Article; in the just Expectation, that the Republic of Genoa will facilitate, so far as is in her Power, a Cession so indispensably necessary for the Liberty and Security of Italy, upon Re-payment of what shall appear to be due to the said Republic, on account of the said Territory. And it is further provided, that the said Town of Final shall be made a Free Port, in the same Manner as Leghorn, and shall so remain for ever; and, for its Security, his Sardinian Majesty shall be at Liberty to re-establish the Fortifications there, which have been demolished, or to cause such others to be erected as shall seem to him expedient.

Madrid, January 6. The Court seems to be under the highest Concern about the Armistice now making at Toulon, which is considered as the very utmost Effort of the Two Crowns; in which if they fail, a Peace must be procured, upon the best Terms that can be had. The Manifesto lately published by the Duke de Montemar, has been suppressed by the King, on account of some warm Expressions therein, which are injurious to the Memory of M. de Campillo, who is still remembered with Regret by their Majesties. The Points which were under Consideration of two great Ministers at the Hague, relative to a Peace between this Crown and that of Great Britain, have been considered here in Council, and are thought too hard to be accepted. The last high Winds having almost choked the Port of Barcelona, by bringing a vast Sand Bank near the Mouth of it, Orders have been given for cleansing it, with the utmost Speed, that the Vessels intended to sail from thence for the Coast of Provence, may not be hindered.

Vienna, January 15. There never was any Ceremony conducted with greater Order or Magnificence, than the great Ball that was given on the 14th at Court; and, indeed, all the Rejoicings that have followed since. We are still employ'd, in making all the necessary Preparations for opening, very early, the next Campaign; and all her Majesty's Ministers at the Courts of her Allies, have Orders to solicit as early an Appearance in the Field as is possible; and, in order to set a good Example, her Majesty has sent precise Orders to the Austrian Netherlands, for completing the Troops that are to act in Conjunction with the Allies, to 33,000 Men; and Orders have been likewise sent, for halting the Reinforcements which are marching to Prince Lobkowitz, in order to enable him to drive the Spaniards into the Kingdom of Naples, before the French can make any Descent on the Coasts of Italy, supposing that to be the real Intention of their present Armament.

We hear by Letters from Cork, that two large Spanish Privateers had taken, about the beginning of this Month, off Cape Clear, two Merchant Ships belonging to that Port; and had put several of the Hands on Shore near Glon-killy, after stripping them naked.

Private Letters from Hamburg say, that his Imperial Highness of Russia is so much indisposed, and the bleak Air of Moscow seems so little likely to agree with him, that it was thought the Czarina will be prevailed upon, to excuse his Imperial Highness from that Journey.

According to our last Advices from Vienna, the Nobility of Hungary have caused it to be signified to her Majesty, that they intend to raise speedily a new Regiment of Foot, consisting of 1800 Men; and that they are desirous her Majesty should honour them so far, as to declare the Arch-duke Joseph, Colonel of it.

The same Letters say, that the Generals Preising and Minucci had made some Overtures for paying their own Ransoms; and, that it was believed, as soon as they were at Liberty, they would quit the Bavarian Service.

The late Fog at the Hague was so thick, between Eleven and One, that they were forced to carry Flambeaux before the Coaches, and the Coachmen were also obliged to walk at their Horses Heads, in order to prevent Accidents.

The Fog was as great at Leyden, where People were, for three Hours, afraid to move, nothing of that Kind having been ever remembered by the oldest People in the Town; but Letters from other Places in Holland make no mention of it; so that it does not seem to have been of great Extent.

Last Saturday Morning Capt. Pourcy, of Edmonton, lost Bank Notes, and other Things, out of his Scrutore, to above the Value of 1000 l. It is supposed to have been taken by a Servant, who has ever since absented himself.
